TO : The Director

DATE: 3-14-67

FROM : N. P. Callahan

SUBJECT: The Congressional Record

90th Congress

Pages H2614-H2616. Congressman Reuss, (D) Wisconsin, introduced a bill, H. R. 7107, to amend the National Security Act of 1947 and the Records Disposal Act of July 7, 1953, to provide for the improved direction and supervision by the President and by the Congress of the foreign intelligence activities and special operations of the United States. The text of the bill is set forth in the Record. Mr. Reuss pointed out that "The bill would place the political action activities of the CIA under the President's personal direction. It would also establish a Joint Congressional Committee on Intelligence to supervise CIA activities." He commented on recent revelations regarding CIA and stated "If there is to be tidying up, it falls upon Congress to do it. I sincerely hope that we will get on with the task."

Pages A1223-A1225. Congressman Evans, (D) Tennessee, extended his remarks concerning the conduct and operation of the CIA. He stated "In other words, the CIA has too much money with too little control and, therefore, has branched out into these diverse areas where any relationship to our national security is certainly remote. It is my feeling that funds for the CIA should be sharply reduced in order that it may zero in on its real mission—its basic role of intelligence." Mr. Evans included an article from the Washington Post written by Mr. John Kenneth Galbraith entitled "CIA Needs a Tug on Its Purse Strings—A Man Who Has Had Some Dealings With the Agency Says It Lacks the Discipline of Poverty."

SUBJECT: CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY (CIA)

Today's newspapers contain the text of a report from the President of CIA's support of educational and private voluntary organizations operating abroad. The report, of a Committee appointed by the President and chaired by Under Secretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach, and made up of Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare John Gardner, and CIA Director Richard Helms, recommends the following: (1) It should be the policy of the U. S. Government that no federal agency would provide any covert financial assistance or support, direct or indirect, to any of the nation's educational or private voluntary organizations. (2) The Government should promptly develop and establish a public-private mechanism to provide public funds openly for overseas activities of organizations which are adjudged deserving, in the national interest, of public support.

ORIGINAL DOCUMENT SENT TO

10 — Pages A1522-A1524. Senator Thurmond, (R) South Carolina, extended his remarks concerning the recent exposures of the connections between the CIA and the National Students Association (NSA) pointing out that much was made of the supposed anti-Communist work of NSA. He stated "Yet to those who have long been familiar with the activities and projects of NSA, it seemed incredible that the far-left ideology of the NSA could ever have supported an effective anti-Communist program. . . . An article written by Ken Thompson and published in the current issue of Human Events thoroughly demolished whatever pretenses the NSA might have had to being anti-Communist. He placed Mr. Thompson's article in the Record."

5 — Pages A1607-A1608. Congressman Hebert, (D) Louisiana, said "I would like to call the attention of my distinguished colleagues to a signed editorial appearing in Look magazine of April 18, 1967, entitled 'A Few Kind Words for CIA.' . . . I share Editor Attwood's concern about the recent furor over the alleged CIA support of overseas activities of student and other organizations, and I share his concern about the possible consequences to American security by these 'revelations.' He included the editorial in the Record."

INSIDE LABOR

Fight Against Mao-ists and Castro-ites Hurt When CIA
Ignored Specific Warning Not to Use Unions as Cover

By Victor Riesel

Washington, D.C.: -- Over at the spook house, sometimes known as the Central Intelligence Agency, considerable labor and cultural policy was made by an isolated satellite band known as Social Democrats -- about as numerous as the whooping crane but far less familiar with America's fauna and flora.

In America, they -- what's left of them, including most prestigious and influential Columbia University professors -- are the counterpart of Britain's vanishing Fabian Socialists.

It was this isolated and esoteric band which got the CIA into difficulties which have resulted in the ripping of covers right off some of the nation's most vital counteroperations.

Now such labor leaders as George Meany, AFL-CIO president, are being blamed for accepting millions of dollars to run riots in Guyana, raids in Arab oil countries and revolutions in South America -- while all the time it was the inspiration of this bland Socialist group which operated on a front reaching from Belgrade to British Guiana.

Therefore the time has come for reporting the anti-sceptic truth:

Back in the early '50s Meany and two of his most intimate colleagues sat down with Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, then director of the CIA.

In effect, they told him they wanted no CIA interference in the American labor movement. They said they did not want any of their thousands of unions (then only in the AFL so they could not talk for the CIO) used as fronts or cover for international operations. Gen. Smith gave his word.

4/6/67

For almost a decade the CIA refrained. Then three unions were approached. These are autonomous organizations. They kept no CIA money. They were merely conduits themselves.

Who can say they were wrong to get into the battle against the fronts heavily financed by the Soviets, the Maoists and the Castroites?

But that is not the sizzling issue. The point is that both the CIA and its specialists -- in and out of the spook house -- were nobly intellectual but abysmally uninformed. The unions had the money to operate on their own and not subject the CIA to the indignities which Britain's MI-6 never would be forced to suffer.

There is evidence that labor, working frankly and openly with industry and a major U.S. agency, could push back the Maoists and Castroites -- a task now being threatened by the recent impugning of all labor motives.

There is the American Institute for Free Labor Development, which I have covered in Latin America -- sometimes by open jeep in the starvation stretches of northeastern Brazil -- and sometimes under machine-gun cover in the concrete jungles of metropolitan Caracas, Venezuela.

This AIFLD has spent $17,438,481 since 1962.

I have examined the records. There is no doubt that Meany is truthful when he says that the AIFLD "has never received one cent of CIA money."

Of this money, $2,060,700 came from U.S. labor itself -- its pension funds, its general treasuries, and its leaders.

Another $937,666 was contributed by such non-spook corporations as the National Biscuit Co; Corning Glass; the King Ranch; IBM World Trade Corp.; the Rockefellers; Sheraton Corp; the United Shoe Machinery Corp.; and Tamiment-in-the-Poconos, a boy-meets-girl camp.

Of course the bulk of the funds came from the U.S. government -- about as secretly as a "be-in" or a "mellow-yellow" picnic. Everybody knew it who cared to look at the record. Since 1962, the Agency for International Development (AID) threw some $15,440,065 into AIFLD operations.

--MORE--

What was done with the money?

I have been in their housing projects, or have gone over their sites at the edge of Mexico City, in Guyana, Brazil and Peru.

Workers who lived in ghastly "barriados and favelas" -- waterless, toiletless, windowless, tin boxes (slums would be a majestic description for such hotels) -- now live in the freshness of new AIFLD housing projects as modern as in any American urban renewal project.

I have driven with labor leaders and priests into areas where once naked children died by the roadside -- and have walked amongst new clinics, new hospitals, new schools, new workers saving-and-loan credit banks, new industrial skill training centers. The AIFLD, led by George Meany and businessman J. Peter Grace, built all this.

And it was done as it should have been done in all other fields -- not through the CIA but through other agencies. But now, because three unions did permit themselves to be used as covers, all labor is being hit by "exposures" abroad.

And little children in lagging lands will suffer.

Pages A1662-A1663. Congresswoman Green, (D) Oregon, extended her remarks regarding the disclosure of CIA's involvement with private organizations. She included an article written by Norman Cousins entitled "Subversion By Government" and advised that this article points out "the great danger to this Nation's security occurs when a group of men, even if of avowedly 'good' intentions, are able to function outside the constitutional limits of law. This, the CIA apparently does. . . . -I recommend Norman Cousins' clear and convincing article for not only adult reading, but for high school and college textbooks on American government." The article states "The CIA was conceived twenty years ago as a specific response to the global subversive activities of communism. It was decided, on the highest levels of government, that what the U. S. needed was a super-secret agency with world-wide capabilities—an agency far more secret than even the FBI."

Pages A1633-A1634. Senator Young, (R) North Dakota, requested to have printed in the Record a signed editorial entitled "A Few Kind Words for the CIA" written by former Ambassador William Attwood and published in the April 18th issue of Look magazine, and an article from the New York Times of April 6th entitled "Look, in a Signed Editorial, Supports CIA Subsidies for Students' Organizations" written by Henry Raymond. Mr. Young advised that he was placing this material in the Record inasmuch as it makes a marked contribution toward making a little sense out of all of the adverse publicity regarding the CIA.

WASHINGTON OBSERVER NEWSLETTER

"They that can give up essential liberty to obtain a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty nor safety"
BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

NUMBER 35

MARCH 15, 1967

LBJ'S
CIA Biggest untold CIA story is how LBJ utilized unvouchered CIA funds in his 1964 Presidential campaign. Two phoney "institutes" were set up to funnel CIA money to private detective agencies hired to spy on GOP standard bearer Barry Goldwater and the Republican campaign organizations and sabotage whenever possible. This covert operation included wire-tapping, bugging, bribery and the planting of stool pigeons in strategic spots in the Republican organizations.

In order to safeguard against Democratic espionage, the GOP hired several security officers to set up a protective system. Ironically, one of the most highly efficient GOP security officers was a CIA-financed LBJ spy; he wrote many confidential reports that went to the desk of the President via a "drop" located in a public relations office located in the National Press building in Washington.

LBJ was so gratified with the work of this master spy that after the campaign, he planned to appoint him to the chairmanship of a Federal commission. Unfortunately, the double agent got boastful and told one of his corporate clients that LBJ had offered him the chairmanship; word leaked back to LBJ, who was infuriated and refused to make the appointment.

However, the master spy, who served five years in the FBI, is now reaping a fortune in industrial espionage. For a while he was under intensive investigation by Senator Edward Long's Senate wire-tapping subcommittee. He was slated to be summoned before a committee hearing, but the White House intervened and the whole investigation was pigeon-holed.

The final irony of the tale is that now Barry says that he wants the CIA to finance Republican groups, like Young Americans for Freedom and the Young Republicans.

CUBAN
HELL Every morning in the women's Baracoa prison in Oriente Province 3,000 nude women are paraded before Castro's prison guards; they live in filth and grime. And they are raped at will by their sadistic jailers. One 18-year-old girl is the mother of two children and she doesn't know the identity of the father of either.

Castro has admitted having 50,000 prisoners locked in his dungeons and on prison farms. But according to U.S. intelligence information, there are 200,000 political prisoners incarcerated in prisons mined with dynamite. In the event of insurrection, the prisons will be blown up.

Castro has promised that if there is another Bay of Pigs type of invasion, he will destroy all the 200,000 helpless victims in his terrible dungeons.

While there has been no public announcement, Castro has sent word to President Johnson that he will consider entering into negotiations for the evacuation of all his political prisoners. He has not made known his stipulations. The State Department favors negotiations, but Johnson has made no decision as of now.

WO has learned from a usually reliable source that another Cuban "missile crisis" is approaching. The secret commitment made by the late President Kennedy to Khrushchev not to invade Cuba is still being honored by the State Department and the Administration, however.

COHEN'S COMMAND

U. S. Internal Revenue Commissioner Sheldon S. Cohen has established "bench-marks" for his field revenue collectors and enforcement agents. The "benchmarks" means the minimum quota in tax collections that will be acceptable to the Commissioners. If their tax collections drop below their established quotas they will be marked down in efficiency ratings and if they fail to meet their quotas for three years they will be dismissed from the service.

Some of the field supervisors are bitterly complaining that their collection quotas are marked too high. But to no avail. Commissioner Cohen is adamant. He needs every dollar and penny he can squeeze from the taxpayers to defray the cost of the Great Society spending program to help reelect LBJ next year.

This means that all tax returns will not only be computerized, but the 60,000 Internal Revenue employees will diligently scrutinize returns to find extra assessments and deny borderline exemptions and rigid application of fraud, delinquent and negligence penalties. Mr. Cohen is on leave of absence from Abner Fortas' law firm, where he worked in the tax division under the supervision of cigar-smoking "Miss" Carolyn Agger, wife of Justice Fortas, who jokingly says his wife is now making a living for him. She has a $1 million a year tax law practice.

SUBJECT: CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY (CIA)

There is enclosed a copy of an article which is scheduled to appear in a forthcoming issue of "The Saturday Evening Post." The article is authored by Thomas W. Braden, a former CIA official and now editor and publisher of the "Blade-Tribune," Oceanside, California. Particular attention is directed to this article because of the wide-open revelation of CIA's past subsidization of international organizations.

[Redacted]

Although many of CIA's activities dealing with international organizations already have been widely publicized, Braden does spell out the following points which can be highlighted:

- (1) He gives a concrete example of furnishing funds to Irving Brown, American Federation of Labor (AFL), to combat communist influence in foreign labor unions.
- (2) He cites quite clearly how Jay Lovestone was given nearly two million dollars annually to use in fighting communism in the labor movement in Europe.
- (3) He gives the example of having personally furnished Victor Reuther $50,000 to bolster labor unions in Europe.

The foregoing are significant because George Meany has publicly declared that the AFL did not receive funds from CIA. His opponents and critics may now use the Braden

I'm glad the CIA is
'immoral'

By Thomas W. Braden

Former president of California's Board of Education, trustee of California State Colleges and candidate for lieutenant governor, the author is editor and publisher of the BLADE-TRIBUNE at Oceanside, Calif. During World War II, he served with both the British infantry and with the OSS as a parachutist.

On the desk in front of me as I write these lines is a creased and faded yellow paper. It bears the following inscription in pencil:

"Received from Warren G. Haskins, $15,000. (signed) Norris A. Grambo."

I went in search of this paper on the day the newspaper disclosed the "scandal" of the Central Intelligence Agency's connections with American students and labor leaders. It was a wistful

"And what's wrong with me now?"

For I still think it was and is a good idea, an imperative idea, to get me out of the world? Or is it the editor of The New York Times who is talking nonsense? And so I sat sadly amidst the dust of

Paul-Henri Spaak is a very wise man. He is the former foreign minister and premier. CIA Director Allen Dulles mentioned Spaak's projected journey to the then Senate Majority Leader William F. Knowland of California. I believe that Mr. Dulles thought the senator would like to meet Mr. Spaak. I am sure he was not prepared for Knowland's reaction:

"Why," the senator said, "the man's a socialist."

"Yes," Mr. Dulles replied, "and the head of his party. But you don't know Europe the way I do, Bill. In many European countries, a socialist is roughly equivalent to a Republican." Knowland replied, "I don't care. We aren't going to bring any socialists over here."

The fact, of course, is that in much of Europe in the 1930's, socialists, people who called themselves "left"—the very people whom many Americans thought no better than Communists—were the only people who gave a damn about fighting Communism.

But let us begin at the beginning.

When I went to Washington in 1950 as assistant to Allen W. Dulles, then deputy director to CIA chief Walter Bedell Smith, the agency was three years old. It had been organized, like the State Department, along geographical lines, with a Far Eastern Division, a Western European Division, etc. It seemed to me that this organization was not capable of defending the United States against a new and extraordinarily successful weapon. The weapon was the international Communist front. There were seven of these fronts, all immensely powerful:

had come to maturity during the cold war, assumed that anyone who was for "Peace" and "Freedom" and "Justice" must also be for Communism.

Second, by constant repetition of the two promises of the Russian revolution—the promises of a classless society and of a transformed mankind—the fronts had thrown a peculiar spell over some of the world's intellectuals, artists, writers, scientists, many of whom behaved like disciplined party-liners.

Third, millions of people who would not consciously have supported the interests of the Soviet Union had joined organizations devoted ostensibly to good causes, but secretly owned and operated by and for the Kremlin.

How odd, I thought to myself as I watched these developments, that Communists, who are afraid to join anything but the Communist Party, should gain mass allies through organizational war while we Americans, who join everything, were sitting here tongue-tied.

And so it came about that I had a chat with Allen Dulles. It was late in the day and his secretary had gone. I told him I thought the CIA ought to take on the Russians by penetrating a battery of international fronts. I told him I thought it should be a worldwide operation with a single headquarters.

"You know," he said, leaning back in his chair and lighting his pipe, "I think you may have something there. There's no doubt in my mind that we're losing the cold war. Why don't you take it up down below?"

It was nearly three months later that I came to his office again—this time to resign. On the morning of that day there had been a meeting for which my assistants and I had prepared ourselves carefully. We had been studying Russian front movements, and working out a counteroffensive. We knew that the men who ran CIA's area divisions were jealous of their power. But we thought we had logic on our side. And surely logic would appeal to Frank Wisner.

Frank Wisner, in my view, was an authentic American hero. A war hero. A cold-war hero. He died by his own hand in 1965. But he had been crushed long before by the dangerous detail connected with cold-war operations. At this point in my story, however, he came the response, and one of those damned pebbles for getting into everybody's hair.

One by one the others agreed. Only Richard G. Stilwell, the CIA's East, a hard-driving soldier in civilian clothes who now commands U.S. forces in Thailand, said he had no objection. We all waited to hear what Wisner would say.

Incredibly, he put his hands out, palms down. "Well," he said, looking at me, "you heard the verdict."

Just as incredibly, he smiled.

Sadly I walked down the long hall, and sadly reported to my staff that the day was lost. Then I went to Mr. Dulles's office and resigned. "Oh," said Mr. Dulles, blandly, "Frank and I had talked about his decision. I overruled him." He looked at me from over his papers. "He asked me to."

Thus was the International Organization Division of CIA born, and thus began the first centralized effort to combat Communist fronts.

Perhaps "combat" does not describe the relative strengths brought to battle. For we started with nothing but the truth. Yet within three years we had made solid accomplishments. Few of them would have been possible without undercover methods.

I remember the enormous joy I got when the Boston Symphony Orchestra won more acclaim for the U.S. in Paris than John Foster Dulles or Dwight D. Eisenhower could have bought with a hundred speeches. And then there was Encounter, the magazine published in England and dedicated to the proposition that cultural achievement and political freedom were interdependent. Money for both the orchestra's tour and the magazine's publication came from the CIA, and few outside the CIA knew about it. We had placed one agent in a Europe-based organization of intellectuals called the Congress for Cultural Freedom. Another agent became an editor of Encounter. The agents could not only propose anti-Communist programs to the official leaders of the organizations but they could also suggest ways and means to solve the inevitable budgetary problems. Why not see if the needed money could be obtained from "American foundations"?

By Thomas W. Braden

Former president of California Board of Education, trustee of California State Colleges and candidate for lieutenant governor, the author is editor and publisher of the BLADE-TRIBUNE at Oceanside, Calif. During World War II, he served with both the British infantry and with the OSS as a parachutist.

On the desk in front of me as I write these lines is a creased and faded yellow paper. It bears the following inscription in pencil:

"Received from Warren G. Haskins, $15,000. (signed) Norris A. Grambo."

I went in search of this paper on the day the newspapers disclosed the "scandal" of the Central Intelligence Agency's connections with American students and labor leaders. It was a wistful search, and when it ended, I found myself feeling sad.

For I was Warren G. Haskins. Norris A. Grambo was Irving Brown, of the American Federation of Labor. The $15,000 was from the vaults of the CIA, and the piece of yellow paper is the last memento I possess of a vast and secret operation whose death has been brought about by small-minded and resentful men.

It was my idea to give the $15,000 to Irving Brown. He needed it to pay off his strong-arm squads in Mediterranean ports, so that American supplies could be unloaded against the opposition of Communist dock workers. It was also my idea to give cash, along with advice, to other labor leaders, to students, professors and others who could help the United States in its battle with Communist fronts.

It was my idea. For 17 years I had thought it was a good idea. Yet here it was in the newspapers, buried under excoriation. Walter Lippmann, Joseph Kraft. Editorials. Outrage. Shock.

"What's gone wrong?" I said to myself as I looked at the yellow paper.

"Was there something wrong with me and the others back in 1950? Did we just think we were helping our country, when in fact we ought to have been hauled up before Walter Lippmann?"

"And what's wrong with me now? For I still think it was and is a good idea, an imperative idea. Am I out of my mind? Or is it the editor of The New York Times who is talking nonsense?"

And so I sat sadly amidst the dust of old papers, and after a time I decided something. I decided that if ever I knew a truth in my life, I knew the truth of the cold war, and I knew what the Central Intelligence Agency did in the cold war, and never have I read such a concatenation of inane, misinformation twaddle as I have now been reading about the CIA.

Were the undercover payments by the CIA "immoral"? Surely it cannot be "immoral" to make certain that your country's supplies intended for delivery to friends are not burned, stolen or dumped into the sea.

Are CIA efforts to collect intelligence anywhere it can "disgraceful"? Surely it is not "disgraceful" to ask somebody whether he learned anything while he was abroad that might help his country.

People who make these charges must be naïve. Some of them must be worse. Some must be pretending to be naïve.

Take Victor Reuther, assistant to his brother Walter, president of the United Automobile Workers. According to Drew Pearson, Victor Reuther complained that the American Federation of Labor got money from the CIA and spent it with "undercover techniques." Victor Reuther ought to be ashamed of himself. At his request, I went to Detroit one morning and gave Walter $50,000 in $50 bills. Victor spent the money, mostly in West Germany, to bolster labor unions there. He tried "undercover techniques" to keep me from finding out how he spent it. But I had my own "undercover techniques."

In my opinion and that of my peers in the CIA, he spent it with less than perfect wisdom, for the German unions he chose to help weren't seriously short of money and were already anti-Communist. The CIA money Victor spent would have done much more good where unions were tying up ports at the order of Communist leaders.

As for the theory advanced by the editorial writers that there ought to have been a Government foundation devoted to helping good causes agreed upon by Congress—this may seem sound, but it wouldn't work for a minute. Does anyone really think that congressmen would foster a foreign tour by an artist who has or has had left-wing connections? And imagine the scuffles that would break out as congressmen fought over money to subsidize the organizations in their home districts.

Back in the early 1950's, when the cold war was really hot, the idea that Congress would have approved many of our projects was about as likely as the John Birch Society's approving Medicare. I remember, for example, the time I tried to bring my old friend, Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, to the U.S. to as assistant to Allen W. Dulles, then deputy director to CIA chief Walter Bedell Smith, the agency was three years old. It had been organized, like the State Department, along geographical lines, with a Far Eastern Division, a Western European Division, etc. It seemed to me that this organization was not capable of defending the United States against a new and extraordinarily successful weapon. The weapon was the international Communist front. There were seven of these fronts, all immensely powerful:

1. The International Association of Democratic Lawyers had found "documented proof" that U.S. forces in Korea were dropping canisters of poisoned mosquitoes on North Korean cities and were following a "systematic procedure of torturing civilians, individually and en masse."

2. The World Peace Council had conducted a successful operation called the Stockholm Peace Appeal, a petition signed by more than two million Americans. Most of them, I hope, were in ignorance of the council's program: "The peace movement . . . has set itself the aim to frustrate the aggressive plans of American and English imperialists. . . . The heroic Soviet army is the powerful sentinel of peace."

3. The Women's International Democratic Federation was preparing a Vienna conference of delegates from 40 countries who resolved: "Our children cannot be safe until American warmongers are silenced." The meeting cost the Russians six million dollars.

4. The International Union of Students had the active participation of nearly every student organization in the world. At an estimated cost of $50 million a year, it stressed the hopeless future of the young under any form of society except that dedicated to peace and freedom, as in Russia.

5. The World Federation of Democratic Youth appealed to the non-intellectual young. In 1951, 25,000

One measure of a democracy's strength is the freedom of its citizens to speak out—to dissent from the popular view. Although the editors often disagree with the opinions expressed in Speaking Out, they dedicate the series to that freedom.

Wear out the Yellow Pages

SPEAKING OUT

As the agents knew, the CIA-financed foundations were quite generous when it came to the national interest.

I remember with great pleasure the day an agent came in with the news that four national student organizations had broken away from the Communist International Union of Students and joined our student outfit instead. I remember how Eleanor Roosevelt, glad to help our new International Committee of Women, answered point for point the charges about germ warfare that the Communist women's organization had put forward. I remember the organization of seamen's unions in India and in the Baltic ports.

There were, of course, difficulties, sometimes unexpected. One was the World Assembly of Youth.

We were casting about for something to compete with the Soviet Union in its hold over young people when we discovered this organization based in Dakar. It was dwindling in membership, and apparently not doing much.

After a careful assessment, we decided to put an agent into the assembly. It took a minimum of six months and often a year just to get a man into an organization. Thereafter, except for what advice and help we could lend, he was on his own. But, in this case, we couldn't give any help whatsoever. The agent couldn't find anybody in the organization who wanted any.

The mystery was eventually solved by the man on the spot. WAY, as we had come to call it, was the creature of French intelligence—the Deuxième Bureau. Two French agents held key WAY posts. The French Communist Party seemed strong enough to win a general election. French intelligence was waiting to see what would happen.

We didn't wait. Within a year our man brought about the defeat of his two fellow officers in an election. After that, WAY took a pro-Western stand.

But our greatest difficulty was with labor. When I left the agency in 1951, as to how to correct the situation.

I appealed to a high and respected leader. He kept repeating, "Love, stone and his bunch do a good job."

And so they did. After that meeting, so did we. We cut the subsidy down, and with the money saved we set up new networks in other international labor organizations. Within two years the free labor movement, still holding its own in France and Italy, was going even better elsewhere.

Looking back now, it seems to me that the argument was largely a waste of time. The only argument that mattered was the one with the Communists for the loyalty of millions of workers. That argument, with the help of Love and Brown, was effectively made.

By 1953 we were operating or influencing international organizations in every field where Communist fronts had previously seized ground, and in some where they had not even begun to operate. The money we spent was very little by Soviet standards. But that was reflected in the first rule of our operational plan: "Limit the money to amounts private organizations can credibly spend." The other rules were equally obvious: "Use legitimate, existing organizations; disguise the extent of American interest; protect the integrity of the organization by not requiring it to support every aspect of official American policy."

Such was the status of the organizational weapon when I left the CIA. No doubt it grew stronger later on, as those who took charge gained experience. Was it a good thing to forge such a weapon? In my opinion then—and now—it was essential.

Was it "immoral," "wrong," "disgraceful"? Only in the sense that war itself is immoral, wrong and disgraceful.

For the cold war was and is a war, fought with ideas instead of bombs. And our country has had a clear-cut choice: Either we win the war or lose it. This war is still going on, and I do not mean to imply that we have won it. But we have not lost it either.

We didn't wait. Within a year our man brought about the defeat of his two fellow officers in an election. After that, WAY took a pro-Western stand.

But our greatest difficulty was with labor. When I left the agency in 1951, we were still worrying about the problem. It was personified by Jay Lovestone, assistant to David Dubinsky in the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

One chief of the Communist Party in the United States, Lovestone, had an enormous grasp of foreign-intelligence operations. In 1947 the Communist Confédération Générale du Travail led a strike in Paris which came very near to paralyzing the French economy. A takeover of the government was feared.

Into this crisis stepped Lovestone and his assistant, Irving Brown. With funds from Dubinsky's union, they organized Force Ouvrière, a non-Communist union. When they ran out of money, they appealed to the CIA. Thus began the secret subsidy of free trade unions which soon spread to Italy. Without that subsidy, postwar history might have gone very differently.

But though Lovestone wanted our money, he didn't want to tell us precisely how he spent it. We knew that he was paying them nearly two million dollars annually. In his view, what more did we need to know?

We countered that the unions were not growing as rapidly as we wished and that many members were not paying dues. We wanted to be consulted ing organizations; disguise the role of American interest; protect the integrity of the organization by requiring it to support every aspect of official American policy."

Such was the status of the organizational weapon when I left the CIA. No doubt it grew stronger later on, as those who took charge gained experience. Was it a good thing to forge such a weapon? In my opinion the answer now—it was essential.

Was it "immoral," "wrong," "disgraceful"? Only in the sense that war itself is immoral, wrong and disgraceful.

For the cold war was and is a war, fought with ideas instead of bombs. And our country has had a clear-cut choice: Either we win the war or lose it. This war is still going on, and I do not mean to imply that we have won it. But we have not lost it either.

It is now 12 years since Winston Churchill accurately defined the world as "divided intellectually and to a large extent geographically between the remnants of Communist discipline and influence and the rest of the world." I still believe that the world is no longer accurate. I share the hope that John Kennedy's appeal to the Russians "to help us make the world safe for diversity" reflects the spirit of a new age.

But I am not banking on it, and neither, in my opinion, was the late President. The choice between innocence and power involves the most difficult of decisions. But when an adversary attacks with his weapons disguised as good works, to choose innocence is to choose defeat. So long as the Soviet Union attacks deviously we shall need weapons to fight back, and a government locked in a power struggle cannot acknowledge all the programs it must carry out to cope with its enemies. The weapons we need now cannot, alas, be the same ones that we first used in the 1930's. But the new weapons should be capable of the same affirmative response as the ones we forged 17 years ago, when it seemed that the Communists, unchecked, would win the alliance of most of the world.

young people were brought to Berlin from all over the world, to be engaged (mostly about American atrocities). The estimated cost: $50 million.

6. The International Organization of Journalists was founded in Copenhagen in 1946 by a new Communist majority. A year later the Communists took it over. By 1950 it was an active supporter of every Communist cause.

7. The World Federation of Trade Unions controlled the two most powerful labor unions in France and Italy and took its orders directly from Soviet Intelligence. Yet it was able to mask its Communist allegiance so successfully that the C.I.O. belonged to it for a time.

All in all, the CIA estimated, the Soviet Union was annually spending $250 million on its various fronts. They were worth every penny of it. Consider what they had accomplished.

First, they had stolen the great words. Years after I left the CIA, the late United Nations Ambassador Adlai Stevenson told me how he had been outraged when delegates from underdeveloped countries, young men who had come to maturity during the cold war, assumed that anyone who was for "Peace" and "Freedom" and "Justice" must also be for Communism.

And so it came about that I had a chat with Allen Dulles. It was late in the day and his secretary had gone. I told was still gay, almost boyishly charming, cool yet cordial, a low huddler from Mississippi contained by a vest.

He had one of those purposefully obscure CIA titles: Director of Policy Coordination. But everyone knew that he had run CIA since the death of the wartime OSS, run a tight collection of rabbit warrens hidden in the bureaucracy of the State Department, run it when nobody but Frank Wisner cared whether the country had an intelligence service. Now that it was clear that Bedell Smith and Allen Dulles were really going to take over, Frank Wisner still ran it while they tried to learn what it was they were supposed to run.

And so, as we prepared for the meeting, it was decided that I should pitch my argument to Wisner. He knew more than the others. He could overrule them.

The others sat in front of me in straight-backed chairs, wearing the troubled looks of responsibility. I began by assuring them that I proposed to do nothing in any area without the approval of the chief of that area. I thought, when I finished, that I had made a good case. Wisner gestured at the Chief, Western Europe. "Frank," came the response, "this is just another one of those goddamned proposals for getting into everybody's hair."

One by one the others agreed. Only Richard G. Stilwell, the Chief, Far East, a hard-driving soldier in civilian clothes who now commands U.S. forces in Thailand, said he had no objection. We all waited to hear what Wisner would say.

BRADEN 5/7 NC
OCEANSIDE, CALIF. (UPI)--THOMAS W. BRADEN, FORMER CIA EXECUTIVE, SAID SUNDAY THAT FRANCE AND ITALY PROBABLY WOULD HAVE GONE COMMUNIST IF HE HAD NOT CREATED THE CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY'S PROGRAM OF SUBSIDIZING LABOR UNIONS AND STUDENT GROUPS.

THE FORMER CALIFORNIA BOARD OF EDUCATION PRESIDENT, IN AN INTERVIEW IN SUNDAY'S LOS ANGELES TIMES, SAID HE CREATED THE SUBSIDY TO FIGHT INTERNATIONAL COMMUNISM.

BRADEN SAID HE PROPOSED THE PROJECT IN 1950 WHILE SERVING AS ASSISTANT TO ALLEN DULLES, THEN DEPUTY DIRECTOR OF THE CIA AND LATER ITS DIRECTOR.

"WHAT WE HAD AT THE TIME WAS A SITUATION THROUGHOUT THE WORLD WHERE THE RUSSIANS THROUGH THE USE OF THEIR INTERNATIONAL FRONTS HAD STOLEN THE GREAT WORDS SUCH AS PEACE, JUSTICE AND FREEDOM," HE SAID.

HE SAID THAT IF THE CIA HAD NOT PAID THE SUBSIDY MUCH OF EUROPE WOULD HAVE GONE COMMUNIST--PARTICULARLY FRANCE AND ITALY.

WHEN THE PROGRAM WAS FINALLY APPROVED, BRADEN DIRECTED THE ACTIVITIES AS CHIEF OF THE NEWLY CREATED INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION DIVISION OF THE CIA, HE SAID.

BRADEN SAID THE PROJECT WAS PLANNED TO COMBAT THE $250 MILLION A YEAR SUBSIDY PROGRAM THAT THE SOVIET UNION WAS EMPLOYING TO GAIN GROUND.

"THIS BATTERY OF INTERNATIONAL FRONTS GAVE MANY PEOPLE THE IDEA THAT THE SOVIET UNION HAD A MONOPOLY ON PEACE, JUSTICE AND FREEDOM," HE SAID. "AND IT SEEMED TO ME THAT WE OUGHT TO DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT."

"WE TRIED TO PENETRATE THOSE FRONTS WHENEVER WE COULD THROUGH SECRET FINANCIAL SUPPORT, AND WHEN WE COULDN'T WE BUILT OUR OWN. WE MADE THOSE ORGANIZATIONS POWERFUL AND EFFECTIVE SPOKESMEN FOR THE FREEDOM AND DEMOCRACY THAT OUR COUNTRY STANDS FOR," HE ADDED.

BRADEN SAID IT WAS FAR MORE CRUCIAL TO INFLUENCE THE EUROPEAN LABOR UNIONS THAN TO CONCENTRATE THE PROGRAM'S EFFORTS ON INFLUENCING STUDENTS GROUPS. HE SAID BOTH THE UNITED STATES AND RUSSIA SPENT LARGE SUMS TO GAIN CONTROL OF THE UNIONS.

"I JUST DON'T SEE WHY IT IS IMMORAL TO GET INTO LABOR UNIONS IN FRANCE AND MAKE SURE THE COMMUNIST LABOR UNIONS ARE NOT DUMPING U.S. SUPPLIES INTO THE SEA OR BURNING THEM IN THE PORTS, AND THAT WAS HAPPENING," BRADEN SAID.

HE SAID, "SO WE SUBSIDIZED THE UNIONS TO MAKE SURE IT DIDN'T HAPPEN ANYMORE."

BRADEN WAS CRITICAL OF WALTER REUTHER, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED AUTO WORKERS. "HE SHOULD BE ASHAMED OF HIMSELF," BRADEN SAID.

"I PERSONALLY WENT TO DETROIT AND GAVE WALTER REUTHER $50,000 IN $50 BILLS TO INFLUENCE LABOR UNIONS IN WEST GERMANY," HE SAID.

BRADEN SAID REUTHER GAVE THE MONEY TO HIS BROTHER, VICTOR, WHO SPENT IT WITH "SOMETHING LESS THAN PERFECT WISDOM."

VICTOR REUTHER GAVE THE MONEY TO GERMAN UNIONS WHO WERE NOT SERIOUSLY SHORT OF MONEY AND WERE ALREADY ANTI-COMMUNIST, WHILE OTHER UNIONS WERE TYING UP PORTS AT THE ORDERS OF THEIR COMMUNIST LEADERS, BRADEN SAID.

HE SAID HE IS APPALLED AT CRITICS WHO THINK THE PROGRAM WAS IMMORAL OR DISGRACEFUL.

"I DON'T THINK IT IS IMMORAL OR DISGRACEFUL TO HELP ONE'S COUNTRY," HE DECLARED. "IT SEEMS TO ME THAT A MAN WHO DOES THIS FOR THE CIA IS IN THE SAME POSITION AS A SOLDIER FIGHTING IN VIETNAM."

"TAKE A LOOK AT EUROPE TODAY. IN 1947, IT APPEARED VERY DEFINITELY THAT FRANCE WOULD GO COMMUNIST AND PERHAPS ITALY. WE STEPPED IN WITH THIS ORGANIZATIONAL REASON AND LOOK AT THOSE COUNTRIES TODAY," BRADEN SAID.

BRADEN ADDED, "THEY ARE STABLE, THEY ARE DEMOCRATIC AND THEY ARE ON OUR SIDE. I SUPPOSE, BECAUSE SOME SMALL-MINDED MEN HAVE REVEALED THE PLANS, THOSE PROGRAMS WILL HAVE TO BE ABANDONED. BUT IN THE MIDDLE EAST AND THE FAR EAST IT IS JUST AS IMPORTANT TO BE THERE RIGHT AFTER

Damage Held InevitableCIA Is CompromisedBy Richard Woodward
Washington Post Staff Writer

The word "treason" is deeply resented in Washington with the passing of Sen. Joseph McCarthy. Now it is heard again in secret offices of the Government and in private clubrooms where men of the intelligence community assemble to damn the fate that has overtaken the CIA.

"Treason" is a strong word, to be sure, but no stronger than the feelings that have arisen within the Government over the wounds inflicted on the agency in recent months.

"This," one official has said, "has been a greater disaster for that agency and has done more damage to the interests of the United States than the Bay of Pigs."

Starting with an article in Ramparts magazine in February, disclosure has piled on disclosure on how and through whom the CIA has conducted covert operations all over the world.

Its infiltration of dozens of private organizations, its use of impeccable private foundations as financial conduits, its alliances with foreign and domestic labor organizations, student groups, intellectual and academic societies have been revealed in pitiless detail.

Hardly a day passes that some new tidbit fails to surface: the use of CIA funds to subsidize French newspapers in the 1950s; the agency's clandestine support of the international literary society PEN; the pouring of CIA funds into foreign countries to influence elections.

The most recent and most deeply resented blow was a Saturday Evening Post article written by Thomas W. Braden, the California publisher who served in the agency in the early 1950s and was personally involved in its secret subsidy program. The article was written as an ostensible defense of the CIA but it disclosed new secrets, named new names and reopened the damaging controversy over the agency's role in American life.

Cool Facade

The official reaction to all this has been bland enough. The public posture of CIA is that nothing has happened that requires a public explanation; it admits nothing and denies nothing. The President on some weeks ago took the refuge Presidents often take when overwhelmed by events: He appointed a committee to study the problem.

Behind this cool facade, however, the Government is seething. Something akin to panic has spread through the intelligence community as it waits for other shoes to drop and other secrets to be unmasked.

Robert Ames Jr., deputy director of intelligence in the CIA a few years ago, expressed the ultimate fear in a television interview on Feb. 26:

"It seems to me this is like the old figure of speech: It is a strand in a sweater; it is unravelling. If it unravels the whole thing... it will be a disaster. I think the gentlemen of the Fourth Estate... who are pursuing this all the way, might just as well be in the business of scuttling carriers in the Tonkin Gulf. They are destroying an important part of the Nation's national security fabric."

Amory has since taken a less cataclysmic view of the problem but men still in the Government have not.

"I think what the press has done," a disturbed official remarked last week, "is very close to treason. I want to be specific. The Washington Post, The New York Times and CBS have done the most damage. You (The Washington Post) published a chart (of CIA conduits) which the Communists would have paid millions to get. You gave it to them free. I sometimes wonder what people are thinking when they damage their country in this way."

(The chart to which he referred was a visual representation of material that had already been published in news media.)

What precisely has the damage been?

The first and most obvious reply evoked by a question of that kind is that the pride, the morale and the "image" of the great bureaucracy that occupies the enormous CIA building at Langley, Va., have been badly bruised.

CIA alumnus Braden, who has contributed to the problem unwittingly perhaps, put it this way last week.

"I have been making speeches all over California on a variety of subjects, not including the CIA. But whenever the agency is mentioned there are boos and hoots in the audiences. And these are not left-wing audiences. They are middle-class people—businessmen's clubs and so on. I think that's a hell of a thing in 1967 to hear a fine agency of the Government booed."

Began in 1961

The agency's image problems did not begin, of course, with the Ramparts expose and subsequent disclosures. Its miscalculations at the Bay of Pigs in 1961 destroyed whatever aura of infallibility may have surrounded the CIA in the past. No one was more disillusioned or more critical of the agency than President Kennedy. He brought in a board of outside overseers—now headed by Washington lawyer Clark Clifford—to find out what was wrong. The Clifford panel uncovered dozens of problems, none of which has been publicized. Events of the last few weeks have, in any case, merely reinforced the view that the agency is as capable of blundering and is as susceptible to ineptness—as, say, NASA, or the Department of State.

Overseas an image problem of a different kind has arisen. The Communist propaganda network has been able to depict the agency, not as a Keystone Cop operation, but as a sinister force for the corruption of governments and private organizations. And it is not only the Communists who have taken that line. In Spain last week, a Madrid newspaper accused the CIA of financing an anti-Franco political movement between 1950 and 1954.

The Pakistan Press Agency charged that the International Press Institute has been transformed into "an official CIA organization" by the CIA. There have been repercussions in India, Latin America, the Middle East, and Africa.

The ability of private American organizations and foundations to carry on international programs has been gravely compromised, in the judgment of, people both in and out of the government.

The American Friends of the Far East, a private research and development group that received CIA funds, has been virtually destroyed in terms of future effectiveness. The educational and charitable works of the Asia Foundation of San Francisco have become suspect even though its CIA connections are speculative at best.

"Private organizations," a student of intelligence activities reported, "will be paying a heavy price for years. They are all suspect now, all over the world; even missionaries are going to have serious problems. I think a lot of these organizations are going to have to fold up or withdraw from places like Africa and Latin America. That will leave the field open to the other side."

Amory fears that people in foreign countries who have cooperated with U.S. organizations in the past may be in danger of arrest, harassment, or worse.

Other Problems Raised

Braden's article in the Saturday Evening Post is said to have raised other problems: "Do you think people in other countries, including government officials, are going to work with us now, as they have in the past, knowing that some CIA man may one day jeopardize them by telling everything he knows in a book or a magazine article? The State Department has the same problem, now that Bill Atwood (of Look Magazine) has told all he knows."

He was referring to Atwood's book, "The Reds and The Blacks," which recounts his diplomatic experiences as an Ambassador to Guinea and Kenya.

Government men who live by secrecy very often tend to value secrecy for its own sake and to have exaggerated reactions to its loss. To some extent that is the case in Washington today in lamentations over the plight of the CIA. The talk of "treason" is a case in point. Another was the CIA's attempts a few years ago to prevent publication of "The Invisible Government" by David Wise and Thomas Ross, a book that told more about the agency than had been told before.

In calmer moments, however, politicians and civil servants concerned with "security" and "secrecy" are drawing lessons from the CIA's experience. They concede that in an open society total secrecy is not possible, even if it could be shown to be desirable. They have found that the CIA's shadow existence can be penetrated through the process of inquiry which the CIA itself relies upon for most of its information. They have found that the oath of secrecy that CIA officers and contacts are required to take is no guarantee against disclosure. Former CIA Director Allen Dulles has himself published a book and articles on his experiences in the agency.

They have also found that the agency's techniques often leave much to be desired. Its use of private foundations to covertly subsidize private organizations, for example, was a perilous device. Once the method of subsidy was uncovered, it was a simple matter for the press, as Amory has said, to "peel off the layers of the onion."

Finally, there is now going on in the Government a re-evaluation of the agency's premises. Was it ever a good idea to use private organizations for governmental purposes? "What these disclosures have cost us," an official has said, "is probably greater than anything the CIA got for its money."

The agency, in any case, is expected to weather the storm, with its budget, its labor force, and its privileged relationships with Congress and the White House preserved. How long it will take to restore its self-confidence is a question neither man nor computer can answer.

SUBJECT: The Congressional Record

Pages A1722-A1723. Congressman Hebert, (D) Louisiana, extended his remarks and included an editorial from the Washington Evening Star of March 31st entitled "Reforming The CIA." The editorial comments on the report issued by the study committee appointed by the President to review relationships between private American voluntary organizations and the CIA. The editorial advised there is one hopeful note in the report and that is that the committee members do not believe the policies which they recommend will "unduly handicap" the CIA "in the exercise of its national security responsibilities."

Pages A1745-A1747. Congressman Rivers, (R) South Carolina, extended his remarks concerning the recent disclosure of certain activities of the CIA in relation to the National Student Association. He included an article from the U. S. News & World Report entitled "CIA: Other Side of the Story--What Reds Are Doing." Mr. Rivers stated "I think it is important for Members of Congress to keep in mind the major job the CIA is doing and the only way to do that is to appreciate the extent and the viciousness of the challenge." The article comments on KGB, the Soviet Committee for State Security, and states "The KGB is said to have almost unlimited funds at its disposal--despite Russia's shortage of foreign exchange--and more manpower than the CIA, the FBI and U. S. military intelligence combined." The article goes on to state "Countering Communist activities inside the U. S. is a task of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. It is the CIA which has the responsibility for combatting actions in the rest of the world which are inimical to the interests of this country."

VOLUME XI NO. 7

THE STRANGE MEN OF THE C. I. A.

Many conservatives are looking for the reason behind the exposure of certain C.I.A. activities since the only ones who benefited from them were the left-wingers and Communists. This type "expose" is not usually found in the "liberal" press which suddenly became indignant to learn that C.I.A. funds had been used to subsidize left-wing causes and organizations. That this policy had the approval of top government leaders was confirmed by Nicholas Katzenbach, head of the three-man Warren Commission-like panel selected to "investigate" the situation. He stated, after a preliminary "investigation," that the C.I.A. followed national policy and acted "with the approval of senior interdepartmental review committees, including the secretaries of state and defense and their representatives."

Everything about the C.I.A. is supposedly top secret but suddenly long lists of recipients of their largesse were made available to the general public in sensational headlines. While one should not "take a gift horse in the mouth," we can only get the feeling that these activities are probably among the more innocent ones of the C.I.A. Involvement in assassinations and financing of actual known Communists were not "exposed" but are among the other activities of the top U.S. international intelligence agency.

The C.I.A. operates on a tremendous secret budget estimated to be far in excess of a billion dollars per year. Appropriations to it are covered up by adding them to the budgets of other government departments and agencies. The secrecy necessary for its operations has made the C.I.A. a perfect haven for many doubtful characters. The N.Y. TIMES of March 30, 1967 stated:

"In the late 1940's and early 1950's many liberals wished to serve their country found in the C.I.A. a personal haven, safe from the onslaughts of McCarthyism, but also an opportunity to bring to bear on the problems of the cold war a realistic and understanding of the pluralism of emerging nations."

A clean history is replete with examples of how "liberals" afraid of McCarthyism serve their country. They are typified by the man in the C.I.A. who was in charge of covertly subsidizing the aforementioned left-wing causes and organizations. He is Cord Meyer, Jr., described by the N.Y. TIMES as a "hidden liberal," submerged for sixteen years "in the anonymity of the Central Intelligence Agency," but well known in Washington social and intellectual circles. The revelation of Cord Meyer's role came as a surprise even to his friends, one of whom is quoted as stating: "He was not the C.I.A. type. He was a world government man." But then, of course, perhaps this friend does not understand what the C.I.A. type really is.

Cord Meyer's association with the C.I.A. had been revealed previously at the time of the murder of his divorced wife, Mary Pinchot Meyer, on October 13, 1964. The N.Y. TIMES states that this murder was never solved but a 25-year-old laborer, Raymond Crump, Jr., had been arrested at the time and charged with the crime.

Cord Meyer, Jr. was born in Washington, D.C., on November 10, 1920. His father, who was for many years a career officer of the State Department, was a liberal as was his grandfather, who was Treasurer and later Chairman of the Democratic Party of N.Y. State. Both were also named "Cord." His mother was the former Katherine Thaw whose father, Alexander Blair Shaw, was known as a confirmed liberal. Cord Meyer, Jr. was educated at St. Paul's School in Concord, N.H. and graduated from Yale in the Class of 1943. Later he attended Harvard (don't they all?).

On April 19, 1945 he married Mary Eno Pinchot, the wedding being performed by Rev. Reinhold Niebuhr, whose long communist-front activity is documented in government records. Miss Pinchot's father, Amos, was a leftist who had been vice chairman of the Civil Liberties Bureau and a member of the American Union Against Militarism. On May 25, 1919 he addressed a meeting of the "People's Council" at Madison Square Garden, New York City. The People's Council was modeled after the Russian type and many of its members became notorious as Communists and left-wing Socialists. Miss Pinchot's mother was chairman of the Women's Peace Party of N.Y.C., another left-wing organization.

While studying at Harvard, on a Lowell Fellowship, Cord Meyer, Jr. was invited to attend a conference on World Government presided over by Justice Owen J. Roberts and called by Grenville Clark, Robert Bass (former governor of New Hampshire) and Thomas H. Mahoney, a Boston lawyer who was chairman of the Mass. Committee for World Federation. The conference was held in Clark's home in Dublin, N.H., and lauded Cord on his career as the apostle of world government.

In February, 1947, all the U.S. organizations interested in World Government met together at Asheville, N.C. These included the Mass. Committee for World Federation, Americans United for World Government, World Federalists Inc., World Citizens Committee of Georgia and the Student Federalists. At this time Cord Meyer, Jr. was director of Americans for World Government. Out of this meeting a new organization came into being - the United World Federalists. Cord Meyer, Jr. soon became its president and made hundreds of lectures all over the United States promoting World Government.

Among the officers and directors of the United World Federalists have been many familiar names such as: Walter Reuther, Dore Schary, Rev. Donald Sзанtho Harrington, Grenville Clark, A. Philip Randolph, Scott Nearing, Dr. Isador Lubin, Edward M. Warburg, Rep. Emanuel Celler, Rev. John Haynes Holmes, Prof. Stringfellow Barr, Harry A. Overstreet and many others with records of communist-front affiliations according to official government records.

The World Federalists issued the "Second Dublin Declaration" in October, 1965 in which they state: "We believe that the United Nations, through amendment of its charter, is the best instrumentality for the achievement of the goals we seek." Among these goals are:

1. Universal and complete disarmament, subject to effective inspection.
2. An adequate world police force, composed of individuals and not national contingents.
3. Universal membership, with world citizenship for all persons, and no member nation allowed to withdraw.

Among those attending the five-day conference out of which this "Declaration" emerged was Miss Priscilla Johnson of Cambridge, Mass. (a name currently in the news in connection with a famous Soviet "defector"). Some others attending were W.H. Ferry of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, Rev. Donald Harrington, Gerard Piel Sister Mary Tomasine of Rosary College, River Forest, Ill., ... Harlow Shapley and Dr. Paul Dudley White, the heart specialist who treated Eisenhower.

Cord Meyer, Jr. was one of Harold Stassen's aides during the summer of 1945 when the United Nations Organization was being set up in San Francisco (the other was John B. Thompson). A story concerning Cord Meyer, Jr. which appeared in the (now defunct) left-wing newspaper P.M. on March 21, 1948 stated: "Recently, Stassen was again asked to size up Meyer in the light of his activities in behalf of world government. 'That young man has the best mind,' Stassen said without hesitation, 'of any young man in America.' " Around this time Cord was getting the full treatment and another "profile" stated (Closeup, January 14, 1948 by Mary Braggiotti): "To a growing number of Americans - and people in other countries, too - Cord Meyer, Jr. is taking his place rapidly in the select ranks of the shining young ones of the world." This "shining young hope of the (one) world (ers)" was personally put into the C.I.A. by Allen Dulles over the objections of Senator McCarthy. He has labored diligently under the cloak of anonymity for his goal, World Government. In an article written for THE ATLANTIC on the U.N. shortly after its formation, he wrote:

"For those of us who have fought not for power but because we believe in the possibility of peace, the (U.N.) Charter is more than a series of harmless platitudes. Weak and inadequate as it stands today, it is all that we have won from the war. By our effort, it may yet become the Symbol and instrument of a just order among men. No matter how remote our chances or how distant our success, we have in simple honesty no alternative but the attempt to make it that. As I have suggested, it is possible that we shall fail, and that the death agony of nationalism will be prolonged beyond our lifetime. But eventually, if the civilization of the West is not to disintegrate completely, others who believe as we do will succeed..."

Cord Meyer, Jr., with unlimited amounts of money (taxpayers') at his disposal, then proceeded to subsidize those organizations also interested in the "death agony of nationalism." Through devious channels (one of which was the J.M. Kaplan Fund, Inc. of 55 Fifth Ave., N.Y.C.) C.I.A. funds were dispensed to such organizations as the Institute of International Labor Research, Inc. This outfit maintains an office at 113 East 37 St., N.Y.C. and was also known as Labor Research, Inc. and headed by Norman Thomas, now aged and blind, but long-time militant Socialist. His son, Evan, is now an editor with Harper and Row and very much involved with Manchester's "Death of a President" and more recently with Soviet defector(?) Svetlana Stalina's forthcoming autobiography which Mrs. Priscilla Mary Post Johnson MacMillan (whose address was given as 48 Brattle St., Cambridge, Mass. when she testified before the Warren Commission concerning her acquaintance with Lee Harvey Oswald in Moscow and who is now writing a book about Marina Oswald) is helping her write. It is a small One World, isn't it?

Also associated with the Institute of Labor Research (reportedly recipient of over a million dollars of C.I.A. funds) have been: Leon D. ... , Robert J. Alexander, Philip M. Kaiser, Louis Alberto Monge, Miss Maida Springer, Frank N. Trager, Charles S. Zimmerman and (most important) Sacha Volman who was secretary-treasurer and the real activist of the group. They set up institutes in Costa Rica and the Dominican Republic and, using C.I.A. funds, promoted for political office known leftists such as Juan Bosch.

Volman had close ties with Latin American leftist leaders and was connected with the Marxist-Leninist "Center of Research in Economic and Social Development" in Santo Domingo. This organization (CIDES) was also financed by the U.S. State Department and the Ford Foundation. General Wessin y Wessin of the Dominican Republic exposed CIDES as a Communist training and indoctrination operation which his intelligence men had infiltrated. Sacha Volman was an instructor in this operation and was the man who, with State Department direction, promoted Juan Bosch for the presidency of the Dominican Republic.

Sacha Volman is suspected of being a Soviet agent assigned to Latin American Affairs. He was born in Russia, lived in Rumania, and came to the United States allegedly as a refugee. He is now a U.S. citizen and has been living at 245 East 80th St., N.Y.C. with his wife and one child. In the Hearings of the Senate Internal Security Sub-committee on "The Communist Threat to the United States Through the Caribbean," General Wessin y Wessin of the Dominican Republic testified as follows:

Mr. SOURWINE. Now, you spoke of 40 Communist indoctrination centers operating in the Dominican Republic under Juan Bosch. Did these centers operate openly as a Communist operation?

General WESSIN. Openly.

Mr. SOURWINE. Did they display Communist banners or signs?

General WESSIN. One of these schools located on Caracas Street No. 54 displayed the Soviet flag.

Mr. SOURWINE. The Soviet flag? Not just a Communist banner with a hammer and sickle, but the Soviet flag?

General WESSIN. It was the red flag with the hammer and sickle.

Mr. SOURWINE. Now, do you know where these centers were operated? You named the location of one. Can you tell us where others were?

General WESSIN. In the school Padre Villini Calle-Mercedes. This building, in spite of the fact that it belonged to the Government, was turned over to the Communist Dato Pagan Perdomo to install a school of political science.

There was another one, which went under the initials of CIDES located in the farm, or Finca Jaina Moza. In this school, the teachers were, among the others, Juan Bosch, Angel Miolan, and Sacha Volman.

Mr. SOURWINE. One of those names has come up before. One is new. Let's identify these men.

Who is or was Angel Miolan?

General WESSIN. Angel Miolan is a Communist, and I say that he is a Communist because in order to be secretary of Vicente Lombardo Toledano for 10 years you have to be a Communist.

Mr. SOURWINE. Vicente Lombardo Toledano was an outstanding Communist, was he not?

Gen. WESSIN. Yes, sir.

Mr. SOURWINE. Now, who was Sacha Volman?

General WESSIN. He was a Rumanian brought there by Juan Bosch. I don't know him.

Mr. SOURWINE. Did you consider him a Communist?

General WESSIN. In my country there is a saying that says tell me with whom you go, and I will tell you who you are.

The C.I.A. has financed leftist administration leaders, politicians, student groups and actual conspiracies to overthrow anti-communist governments. It is generally accepted that the C.I.A. played a leading part in eliminating the anti-communist governments of the Dominican Republic, Cuba and Vietnam and that their funds were used to assist in establishing or attempt to establish left-wing governments in Brazil, Peru, Indonesia, Laos and Algeria. In Vietnam (Diem) and the Dominican Republic (Trujillo) the anti-communist heads of government were actually assassinated. An attempted assassination of Batista in Cuba failed. The C.I.A. involvement in this is described in the book, "I Was Castro's Prisoner" by John Martino as follows (P. 47):

"In addition to being ultra-liberal in their political thinking, some CIA men were implicated in a series of conspiracies to murder President Batista, supposedly a friend of the United States, and to overthrow his regime. There was a scandalous involvement of this sort in the so-called Cienfuegos Naval Conspiracy, an assassination plot against the Cuban Chief Executive.

"Years later, a CIA man named Earl Williamson met with some of Fidel Castro's agents and supporters at the Retiro Odontologico, a dentists' building. Without the knowledge or approval of American Ambassador Smith, Williamson stated that the United States would recognize the Castro Government as soon as the Rebels overthrew Batista. There was also some discussion of the arms which the CIA was giving Castro surreptitiously.

"Williamson's remarks were recorded on tape and given unofficially to Ambassador Earl E.T. Smith."

The C.I.A. not only helped Castro into power but saw to it that he stayed there by sabotaging the Cuban patriots' efforts to win back their country in the infamous Bay of Pigs Invasion. John Martino sums it up in the above-mentioned book. (P. 201):

"The abandonment of the Cuban underground may have been the result of cumulative blunders, but, to the Cubans in prison and the Cubans abroad, it had the reek of treason. A thorough investigation of what happened would seem to be an elementary act of justice toward those who died because of what the CIA did and because of what the CIA failed to do."

The book, "The Bay of Pigs," by Haynes Johnson (P. 226-7) describes the bumbling and (planned) mistakes and concludes: "...in the larger sense the military bore less responsibility in the over-all Bay of Pigs operation than the CIA. And, finally, the responsibility must rest with the CIA....

"The gathering of intelligence, with all that is implied in that general term, is the lifeblood of the agency. However, in the Cuban invasion the CIA went far beyond this function. The CIA men in the field tended to take matters into their own hands, to cross the line from intelligence to the formation of policy. They did this in Miami when they picked and groomed men and then dictated to the Frente. They acted for the United States - or implied that they did - when dealing with the Cubans and led them to believe much that was not true. Later there was no way for the Cubans to prove they had been promised anything. In American terminology, they were left holding the bag."

The Cuban Invasion, masterminded by the C.I.A. "failed." Their job, however, is not to plan invasions but to gather intelligence which will be accurate enough for the United States to use in deciding its foreign policy. A sample of this "intelligence" was revealed in Part III of "Communist Threat to the United States Through the Caribbean" in the testimony on Nov. 5, 1959 of Gen. C.P. Cabell, Deputy Director, Central Intelligence Agency. When asked (P. 161) to supply figures concerning Communist Party membership in Latin America, Gen. Cabell gave the number for Dominican Republic as 50, for Haiti as 15 and for Panama as 110. His testimony on pages 162 and 173 is very interesting.

The CHAIRMAN...What do you have information about? About what Communists fought in Castro's forces?

General CABELL. In Cuba?

The CHAIRMAN. Yes, sir.

General CABELL That question is related to the question. Is Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro a Communist?

Let me develop that thought for you, sir. Our information is that the Cuban Communists do not consider him a Communist Party member, or even a pro-Communist.

On the other hand, they are delighted with the nature of his government, which has allowed the Communists opportunity, free opportunity, to organize, to propagandize and to infiltrate.

We know that the Communists consider Castro as a representative of the bourgeoisie, and were unable to gain public recognition or commitments from him during the course of the revolution.

We know that the Communists were concerned when, at the time of his trip to the United States, he showed evidence of a friendly attitude toward the United States.

We know also that it has been the assigned task of the Cuban Communist Party to prevent Castro's revolution from going to the right, that is, from establishing friendly relations with the United States, or ending its tolerance of Communist activities.

Our conclusion, therefore, is that Fidel Castro is not a Communist. . . .

If this is the quality of the C.I.A. "intelligence" we are in a bad way, for Fidel Castro himself has told us that he has been a Communist all along. He managed to fool the C.I.A. but not most observant Americans, since he was identified as an International Communist agent in 1948 by the Government of Colombia in South America after he was arrested for participating in an attempted revolution in Bogota. His identity as a Communist revolutionary was also disclosed in a book written by Alberto Nino, head of Colombian Security shortly afterward, and the facts were reported publicly on radio by Colombian President Perez. At the time Gen. Cabell reported the C.I.A. "conclusion" that Fidel Castro

"is not a Communist," hundreds of reports had come in (and been ignored) from Ambassadors, foreign service officers, friendly diplomats and "other" intelligence sources, warning of the imminent Communist take-over of Cuba. It would seem that the C.I.A. tries to make its "intelligence" fit the picture it is trying to paint.

William P. Bundy, more recently Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs, was previously Assistant Defense Secretary for International Security Affairs, and in this capacity approved of foreign military aid funds of over a billion dollars. He was most generous in approving aid to Communist Dictator Tito of Yugoslavia in accordance with the policy of our former Ambassador, George F. Kennan. Prior to this, however, William Bundy was an official of the C.I.A. and was tied in with the left-wing elements in that agency. Like the other U.S. Government agencies, the C.I.A. is not all bad and has many fine loyal Americans working for it. Unfortunately they are not allowed to set its policy; the left-wing groups have the upper hand all over. William Bundy made a trip to Vietnam shortly before the assassination of President Diem, reportedly to stage manage the project.

Guy Richards in his book, "Imperial Agent" (Devin-Adair, $5.95) states:

"He told how the Russians had hoaxed the CIA, with the help of some internal collaborators, into paying $1,200,000 in cash for the maintenance of some mythical pro-American operatives - money which had actually been divided, one third going to the KGB, one third to the Italian Communist Party, one third to the American Communist Party. . . .

"He told how a number of KGB informants were spotted in the State Department. . . .

"How several CIA men actually gave their first loyalty to the KGB or GRU."

One of the many "theories" concerning the assassination of President Kennedy is that Lee Harvey Oswald was working for the C.I.A. In the light of some of the preceding information, is it so far fetched?

SUBJECT: CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY (CIA)

On 5/23/67, Senator Richard Russell of Georgia publicly made reference to the embarrassing exposés concerning CIA and stated "In view of this spate of confessions or revelations -- whatever you want to call them -- by people who had supposedly been sworn to secrecy, it might be helpful even if you did no more than change the name." Russell made it quite clear that reorganization of CIA should receive consideration.

The Liaison Agent has been advised there could be a move to initiate some drastic reorganization of CIA. This has been attempted in the past, and the results never were particularly significant. We may see a move to create another committee to "survey CIA."

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

Memorandum

TO : The Director

DATE: 7/29/67

FROM : N. P. Callahan

SUBJECT: The Congressional Record

Pages A2629-A2630. Congressman McEwen, (R) New York, stated the importance of sound intelligence as a foundation for national security cannot be overestimated. - - - Our Central Intelligence Agency is the product of a tedious evolution. Yet today it is playing a vital, but unsung, role under circumstances of great difficulty. Its functioning requires secrecy to succeed, and exacts a high standard of personal dedication from each one serving in its ranks. He included an editorial from the May 9, 1967, issue of the Adirondack Daily Enterprise entitled Tom Braden: Secrecy and Disclosure--A Personal Statement. The editorial deals with an article written by Tom Braden for the Saturday Evening Post. The editorial states "Let us put it crudely and bluntly: Tom Braden has violated the oath he took when he assumed his position in the CIA. - - - While his ostensible purpose was to answer some of the romantic and unrealistic attacks against the CIA, Tom Braden has unwittingly demonstrated how dangerous this whole intelligence business is because the people who participate in it are humans, and humans make mistakes, including the very serious mistake of violating sworn statements, as Tom Braden has done."

Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), telephonically advised the Liaison Agent this morning that Mr. Dulles suffered another stroke on the evening of 6/28/67 and is a patient at the Washington Hospital Center. He is in Room 2F-11 and has a private phone, number 541-5354. He is resting comfortably and is in good spirits. The full damage of the stroke has not been diagnosed. So far the only real difficulty lies in his inability to swallow.

SUBJECT: CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY (CIA)

On 7/31/67 [redacted] CIA, advised the Liaison Agent that CIA Director Helms announced to all CIA Division heads that effective immediately he has appointed [redacted] as [redacted] to succeed [redacted]. The position held by [redacted] will be filled by [redacted]. Although there will be no public announcement of these appointments [redacted] wanted the Director to know inasmuch as Bureau Liaison has frequent contact with [redacted].

[redacted] has been very friendly and cooperative and it is believed he has a high regard for the Director.

[redacted] He has the unequivocal endorsement of [redacted] who describes [redacted] as a Helms man who will check and double check before he makes a decision and who will not take indiscriminate action.

Memorandum

TO : The Director

DATE: 8/15/67

FROM : N. P. Callahan

SUBJECT: The Congressional Record

Pages S12390-S12394. Senator Ervin (D) North Carolina, stated "I deeply regret that a last-minute request from the Central Intelligence Agency necessarily requires the leadership of the Senate to postpone consideration—until after the expiration of the Labor Day recess—of S. 1035, a bill to protect the civilian employees of the executive branch of the U. S. Government in the enjoyment of their constitutional rights and to prevent unwarranted governmental invasions of their privacy. - - - I held conferences with officials of both agencies (CIA and NSA) and informed them that I would be glad to see that the subcommittee gave them a hearing on the bill, if they so desired. I was again informed by their representatives—that the agencies did not desire any hearing. - - - CIA waited until the end of last week and then for the first time undertook to demand that it be allowed a secret hearing before the Judiciary Committee in support of its wish to be totally excluded from the provisions of this bill. I am going to make a suggestion to the CIA - - - that some of its officials read title 18, section 1913 of the United States Code - - - "providing "No part of the money appropriated by any enactment of Congress shall - - - be used - - - to pay for any personal service - - - to influence in any manner a Member of Congress to favor or oppose by vote, or otherwise, any legislation - - - . I am going to have the temerity to suggest that the CIA investigate to see whether or not any of its officers have been violating that statute—that is, if the CIA can lay aside its zeal to exercise unlimited powers of tyranny over their employees and those who apply to it for employment long enough to do so. I would like to make this plain. I am opposed to the Judiciary Committee's holding any secret meeting to hear officers of the Central Intelligence Agency give reasons - - - why their employees should be robbed of the dignity and

In the original of a memorandum captioned and dated as above, the Congressional Record for 8/15/67 was reviewed and pertinent items were marked for the Director's attention. the freedom which all other Americans enjoy. - - - On the subject of polygraphs
- - - Legislatures in five States and several cities have already outlawed these devices, and many unions have forced their elimination through collective bargaining. The Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation has said they are unreliable for personnel purposes. Why should Congress take a step backward by specifically authorizing their continued use on American citizens in these two agencies to ask about their sex lives, their religion, and their family relationships? - - - The idea that any Government agency is entitled to the 'total man' and to knowledge and control of all the details of his personal and community life unrelated to his employment or to law enforcement is more appropriate for totalitarian countries than for a society of freemen. The basic premise of S. 1035 is that a man who works for the Federal Government, even if he works for the CIA or NSA, sells his services, and not his soul. - - - The action of the CIA is without precedent during the 13 years I have been in the Senate." Senator Hruska, (R) Nebraska, joined Mr. Ervin in criticizing CIA and included in the Record an article from the Omaha World-Herald dated April 8, 1967. (Exemption for FBI contained in bill S. 1035.)

SUBJECT: TECHNICAL SURVEILLANCES CONDUCTED BY BUREAU

Reference is made to my memorandum dated 9/6/67 advising that Richard Helms, Director, Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), was scheduled to meet with Attorney General Clark on 9/6/67 in connection with the captioned matter. Special Agents [redacted] and Sam Papich developed the following information on 9/7/67:

A meeting with Attorney General Clark did take place on 9/6/67 and in addition to Helms included the following: Clark Clifford; [redacted]

[redacted]

(S) [redacted] There was no criticism of the Bureau. [redacted]

No decisions were made at this meeting. It was agreed that the Attorney General would continue discussions with Clark Clifford and out of all this might come some new policy.

CIA has furnished the Bureau copies of the book entitled, "Where's What," which represents an excellent compilation of sources of information both in and out of Government. Attached for the Director, Mr. Tolson, Mr. Mohr, and Mr. DeLoach is a copy of the Congressional Record for September 13, 1967, in which proceedings on S. 1035 are pinpointed. These appear on pages S12912 through S12959. A complete review of the Record will be made and a memorandum will be submitted today covering other items of interest to the Bureau. The Senate on 9-13-67 considered S. 1035, a bill to protect the civilian employees of the executive branch of the U. S. Government in the enjoyment of their constitutional rights and to prevent unwarranted governmental invasions of their privacy.

Page S12913. Senator Ervin, (D) North Carolina, author of the bill, stated "With one exception, all of the amendments added in subcommittee and committee are meritorious." The one exception is the one section permitting the Director of CIA or the Director of NSA to make a finding that a psychological or polygraph test is required to protect national security. He said he would not personally favor any exemption of this type noting "If the security of the United States rests on these devices, we are indeed pitifully insecure. Fortunately, it does not, for the FBI does not use these examinations."

Page S12916. Senator Ervin included in the Record Senate Report 534 concerning this bill which notes that a specific exemption from the bill is provided for the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Page S12919. The report contains comments of the subcommittee chairman which include the following: "The Federal Bureau of Investigation does not use personality tests or polygraphs on applicants for employment." Page S12925, "Section 7 provides that the Federal Bureau of Investigation shall be excluded from the provisions of this act."

Memorandum to the Director
Re: The Congressional Record
Proceedings on S. 1035

Page S12938. An article from the Raeford, North Carolina, News-Journal, 9-7-67, entitled "Sam Gets Mad" contains a statement "The Central Intelligence Agency, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Secret Service, and other agencies enjoy almost total immunity to regulation and supervision." An article from the Boston, Massachusetts, Morning Globe, 8-29-67, entitled "Foot-In-Mouth Disease" includes a statement "Sen. Sam J. Ervin (D-N. C.), chief sponsor of the bill, points out that the Federal Bureau of Investigation does not resort to such tests in hiring its staff and overseeing employee conduct because it knows that such tests are not foolproof in sifting truth from falsehood and because other and acceptable techniques are available for testing the character, reputation and capacity of job applicants."

Page S12939. An article from the Christian Science Monitor, 8-29-67, entitled "Spy Agencies Resist 'Privacy' Bill Coverage" contains a statement "The Federal Bureau of Investigation does not rely on such tests in hiring its staff or overseeing its conduct. - - - The Senator reminded his colleagues that FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover found the polygraph unreliable." A New York Times article 8-30-67 entitled "CIA Wins Delay in Bill To Restrict U. S Job Inquiries" contains a statement "Both security agencies are also said to resent the fact that the Federal Bureau of Investigation has been exempted entirely from the bill. A spokesman for Senator Ervin said today that this was done to give the F. B. I. a free hand in investigating employees of other agencies."

Page S12940. Senator Edward Kennedy, (D) Massachusetts, asked Senator Ervin to review for the Senate the reasons for the exemptions to the bill. Senator Ervin stated "There is an exception of a special type, and that is one which exempts the Federal Bureau of Investigation entirely from the provisions of the bill. That exemption was made for two reasons. In the first place, the Federal Bureau of Investigation has been operated in such a way that it has not been charged with any substantial violations of any of the provisions of this bill. On the contrary, if all the agencies and departments of Government had been operated in the manner in which the Federal Bureau of Investigation has been operated, there would be no necessity for a bill of this character. That is one of the reasons for the exemption of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The other reason for the exemption of the Federal Bureau of Investigation from the coverage of the bill is the feeling among many of the cosponsors of the bill that the Bureau should not be included for the reason I have stated, and for the further reason that it must conduct investigations in respect to violations of law and should not be handicapped in so doing by any of the provisions of the bill." Senator Kennedy stated "I, too, share the understanding of the Senator from North Carolina with respect to the fine record of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in conducting investigations and in recruiting their personnel. My understanding is similar to that of the Senator from North Carolina, that they have not, particularly recently, engaged in polygraph tests and the other kinds of tests which are prescribed in the pending measure." Senator Ervin responded that he had been assured the FBI does not use the tests in personnel work. Senator Kennedy then inquired "Is the Senator satisfied, and has he received assurances from people within the Bureau who have the principal responsibilities in this connection, that in the future these rights will continue to be respected?" Senator Ervin replied he had been so assured.

Memorandum to the Director
Re: The Congressional Record

Page S12941. Senator Kennedy asked "And the Senator is further satisfied that the techniques which are utilized by the FBI are not violative of the spirit or the letter" of the bill. Senator Ervin stated "Yes. With the exception of one case which has been called to the attention of the subcommittee, in which an employee was interrogated without an attorney or a friend, I have received no reports of transgression on rights or activity on the part of the FBI which would constitute a violation of the proposed bill. In that particular case, my understanding is that no request was made by the employee for the presence of counsel or a friend at the time of the interrogation." Senator Ervin's reference may relate to the case of Thomas Henry Carter, former Identification Division employee, whose civil action seeking reinstatement is presently pending before the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. Senator Kennedy again asked "Is the Senator prepared to give us what assurance he can that he at least is satisfied that the FBI will respect the purposes and the spirit of the measure?" Senator Ervin replied "I reiterate that if all the departments and agencies in the executive branch of the Government had been conducted as the FBI has been conducted in times past, insofar as its relationship with its employees is concerned, there would be no necessity for a measure of this nature. In view of the statements made to me about their practices and their evaluation of psychological testing and the use of polygraphs, I am satisfied that the FBI will not resort to their use in the future."

Page S12942. Senator Gruening, (D) Alaska, inserted in the Record the portion of the committee report which stated that the FBI does not use psychological or polygraph tests in personnel work.

Page S12946. Senator Ervin advised Senator Bayh, (D) Indiana, that the FBI does not use the polygraph or psychological testing and asked

Memorandum to the Director
Re: The Congressional Record
Proceedings on S. 1035

why CIA and NSA should use a method the FBI repudiates as worthless. Senator Bayh replied: "Let me suggest to the Senator that the FBI and the CIA are playing in a somewhat different league. The FBI is known to employ, perhaps, the highest-trained, highest-caliber individuals of any agency in the Government. The Senator from North Carolina, as a distinguished member of the bar, and I, as a relative neophyte member of the bar, know the extent to which the FBI will go in trying to get this caliber of individual. They ferret out persons accused of crimes and those who might be enemies of this country in every way possible, within the continental United States; and they are to be complimented for their jobs. "

Page S12949. Senator Young, (R) North Dakota, stated there is far more reason for CIA to be exempted from provisions of this bill than for the FBI. Senator Smith, (R) Maine, stated she wants government employees to be protected without impairment to the national security. She stated "I find there is a potential conflict between national security and some individual employees employed by the CIA and the FBI. "

Pages S12949-S12950. Senator Stennis, (D) Mississippi, stated the FBI should be exempted from the bill. He stated "The FBI is an organization nearly all of the employees of which, I assume, are of the very highest character. They always seek to employ people of a high order of character and intelligence. "

Page S12952. Mr. Ervin stated "Since CIA officials have leaked so much material to the press in recent days, I should think it would be all right for me to do a little leaking, too. They would like to be exempted from all responsibility and accountability to law, and everything else on earth, in the heavens above, and the waters beneath them. I think that is asking a little too much. "

Page S12954. Senator Young proposed an amendment to permit the FBI, the same as CIA and NSA, to give psychological and polygraph tests providing this is done after a finding by the Director of the agency or his designee that such is required to protect the national security. The amendment also struck out the section exempting the FBI from all provisions of the bill. Senator Young noted this would put the FBI in the same category as CIA and NSA.

Memorandum to the Director
Re: The Congressional Record
Proceedings on S. 1035

Senator Ervin objected to the amendment and restated his previous comment that if all agencies operated as the FBI does the bill would not be required. Pages S12954-S12955. Senator Cotton, (R) New Hampshire, stated he intended to vote for the amendment stating he wants it understood "he recognizes the fact that insofar as he knows and has ever heard in the years he has been here, the FBI has not been guilty of any conduct that would require this legislation, and that this amendment is to be agreed to merely in the interest of uniformity."

Page S12955. Senator Holland, (D) Florida, stated he would vote for the amendment noting "I would not like to see the Senate take action which would make it appear that we are less interested in protecting the employees of the FBI than we are in protecting the employees of any other Government agency, from any action of the type that is protected against. My own feeling is that there is no real justification for the section that excludes the FBI - - - ." The amendment was agreed to by a voice vote.

Page S12958. The bill was passed by a vote of 79 to 4 and now goes to the House of Representatives.

We took a real licking.

Page H12038. Congressman Laird, (R) Wisconsin, spoke concerning an article which appeared in the Washington Evening Star on September 14 entitled "Airlie House Is Backed by CIA, District of Columbia Lawyer Claims." He advised that the article was the result of a press conference held by Mr. William Higgs who was described in the article as a "Washington attorney." Mr. Laird set forth background information on Higgs pointing out that he is a "31-year-old white disbarred lawyer from the State of Mississippi." Mr. Laird stated "The files of every newspaper that has access to wire service information should be replete with this man's incredible record." Mr. Laird advised that in checking the allegations in the article "I found many false and unverified statements. But more important, the innuendo and general tone of the charges has unquestionably greatly damaged the reputation of this fine institution which has contributed so much to national and international affairs. - - - the charges of 'bugging' and monitoring of conferences are completely false, as was stated by both the Airlie Foundation and the Government agencies who responded to the Star's articles. - - - Among the groups who are listed in the Star article as having met there recently are the House Republican leaders, the International Association of Police Chiefs, the State Department, and others."

The Director mentioned the State Department's attitude toward the handling of Soviet officials who have been exposed as espionage agents in this country. The Director could not understand why State was reluctant to reveal and publicize this

FROM : J. B. Adams

SUBJECT: S. 1035; PROPOSED LEGISLATION TO PROTECT U.S. EMPLOYEES' CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS AND TO PREVENT UNWARRANTED GOVERNMENTAL
INVASION OF PRIVACY

Information has been received that the Senate this afternoon passed captioned bill with an amendment eliminating the exemption of the FBI from its provisions and permitting the FBI along with CIA and NSA to request an employee to take a polygraph test or a psychological test designed to elicit from him information concerning his personal relationship with relatives, his religious beliefs or practices, and his attitude or conduct regarding sexual matters, if the agency head makes a personal finding in each individual case that such test or information is required to protect the National security.

The following objectionable features are included in the bill as it reportedly passed the Senate:

The Bureau cannot advise, instruct, or indoctrinate any employee in respect to any matter or subject other than the performance of official duties to which he is or may be assigned.

The Bureau cannot require or request any employee to participate in any way in any activities or undertakings unless they are related to the performance of official duties to which he is or may be assigned.

The Bureau cannot require or request any employee to make any report concerning any of his activities unless they are related to the performance of official duties to which he is or may be assigned unless there is reason to believe that the employee is engaged in outside activities or employment in conflict with his official duties.

The Bureau cannot require or request any employee to submit to any interrogation or examination concerning his personal relationship with any relative, concerning his religious beliefs or practices, or concerning his attitude or conduct regarding sexual matters. The proviso mentioned in the first paragraph above relating to the FBI, CIA, and NSA would permit polygraph and psychological examinations in these cases when the agency head deems it necessary in the National defense but the proviso apparently would not permit regular interrogation of employees concerning sexual matters, etc.

Re: S.1035; Proposed Legislation to Protect U.S. Employees'
Constitutional Rights and to Prevent Unwarranted Governmental
Invasion of Privacy

The Bureau cannot require any employee under investigation for misconduct to submit to interrogation which could lead to disciplinary action without the presence of counsel or other person of employee's choice, if he so requests.

The bill sets up a Board on Employees' Rights, no member of which may be an officer or employee of the U.S. Government. This Board will have the authority and duty to receive and investigate written complaints from any employee claiming to be affected or aggrieved by any violation or threatened violation of the Act. The Board is to conduct a hearing on each complaint at which union representatives may participate. If the Board finds that the Act has been violated, or a violation is threatened, it shall immediately issue an order requiring the responsible official to cease and desist and it may in the first offense issue an official reprimand against the responsible official or order his suspension without pay for not more than 15 days. In the case of a second or subsequent offense by the same official, the Board may order his suspension for as much as 30 days or his removal from his position.

Whenever any official violates any of the provisions of the Act, the employee affected or aggrieved may bring a civil action in the U.S. District Court without regard as to whether the aggrieved party has exhausted all administrative remedies.

The above is submitted for information. A copy of the bill which does not contain the amendments made today is attached.

FROM : D. J. Brennan, Jr.

SUBJECT: CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY (CIA)
REQUEST FOR BUREAU LECTURE, 10/30/67

On 10/16/67, [redacted] CIA, inquired if a Bureau Supervisor could lecture to a group of approximately 40 CIA intelligence officers on 10/30/67. [redacted]

[redacted] CIA is interested in a lecture which would cover the current internal security problems as they relate to the racial situation and the emergence of the "new left." CIA does not expect a discussion of any specific case, and there will be no reason to touch on anything dealing with Bureau sources or informants.

ACTION:

If approved, a Supervisor of the Domestic Intelligence Division will handle the lecture and will restrict his statements in line with the above.

DATE 12/4/94 BY SP7

C.A. #88-1846
per CIA Review of 6/2/94

The captioned book dealing with the espionage organization and activities of intelligence services throughout the world is scheduled to appear in the very near future. It is to be published by Random House, Incorporated. A condensed version of the book began appearing in the "Saturday Evening Post" of last week.

b3
b7D

It should be noted that Wise and Ross previously hit CIA in their book "The Invisible Government." The primary criticism of CIA in this book was the allegation that the Agency was deeply involved in the formation of our foreign policy. The Soviet-bloc countries made extensive use of the material published by Wise and Ross.

FROM : SAC, NEW YORK (66-0)

SUBJECT: WHERE'S WHAT - REFERENCE BOOK
LIAISON MATTER
CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY (CIA)

ReBulet, 9/29/67, to WFO, copy to NY, wherein the Bureau furnished NY with three copies of the above-captioned book.

A review of "Where's What" indicates that it is an excellent reference book setting forth extensive material concerning the availability of records in all branches of government - federal, state, and municipal - as well as providing a detailed list of source material concerning records in industry and in the educational field.

Observation of the book by the Supervisory Staff in NY elicited the opinion that it would be extremely beneficial for NY to have additional copies of the book.

NY feels that each of the 14 squads in the Criminal Division, the 8 squads in the Security Division, and the 12 squads in the Espionage Division, which do not have a copy of the book, should each have a copy. Q

Additionally, it is felt that four copies of the book should be obtained for the Administrative Division, with three of these copies being placed in the Resident Agencies in Garden City, White Plains and Babylon.
